Business and Financial Papers

Finding Aid Created by Jessi Fishman, GRA, Spring 2009

SCOPE AND CONTENTS

The original Austin Theatre Alliance donation included over 879 oversize production and movie posters as well as hundreds of playbills and programs, which have been documented separately in Excel spreadsheets and are on file at the Fine Arts Library. The collection also contained single-sheet promotional materials, Paramount Theatre season newsletters, fundraising materials (most in the form of letters with envelopes), and glossy head shots and other photographs, all of which have also been documented separately, and can be accessed from the Fine Arts Library.

Another large subset of the donation includes general historical, business, and financial documents; correspondence; group order sales forms and advertising forms and receipts; assorted awards, newsletters, oversize material, and information booklets from other theaters and companies; press releases and newspaper articles grouped together; and folders and groups of material related to individual plays and performances. Other minor documentation in the collection involves political issues, architectural drawings, and information regarding catering, parties, and general promotion. The collection spans 1976 to 2002, bulking in the mid 1980s, with documentation of numerous individual productions, especially productions of “Dracula” starring Martin Landau and “Best Little Whorehouse in Texas” starring Dolly Parton and Burt Reynolds. Key items of note include a photocopy of a letter from Lady Bird Johnson, thanking Mr. Laurence Luckinbill of the John Houseman Theater Center for the invitation to the New York opening of “Lyndon!” dated January 15, 1991; a photocopy of a letter from Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas Jack Pope to Mr. William W. Monroe, Managing Director of the Paramount Theater, in appreciation for the theater lending the Supreme Court some stanchions and ropes for an induction ceremony, dated October 23, 1984; two photocopies of a letter from J.J. Pickle, Texas representative in the U.S. Congress to Dr. Jim Prentice, complimenting the cast of “Dracula” dated January 3, 1985; copies of author and illustrator Edward Gorey’s stage sets for “Dracula”; and detailed information about the Debbie Reynolds performance of February 14, 1998, including transportation and rider documentation. The collection spans 12 Hollinger boxes and two Bankers boxes.
