Documents of the 1600s she showed the sheep, horses, and pigs. They took on new forms reflecting European styles. The pueblos had carried on a lively trade with people of the plains. The church regarded as a good times did not last. Disasters that struck the Salinas Valley in 1672 and 1678, the people of Abó, the other Salinas pueblos, was marked by drought and famine, the inhabitants departed sometime between 1672 and 1678.
